The Axis Bank is one of the best-known online banks in India and has a very high growth rate. In Mumbai, the bank has now moved into new headquarters covering a total of nine floors and housing the workstations of the entire central administrative department. When designing the work areas, which primarily consisted of open-space offices, the architects adhered to a discreet colour scheme. Each floor is dominated by a different colour.

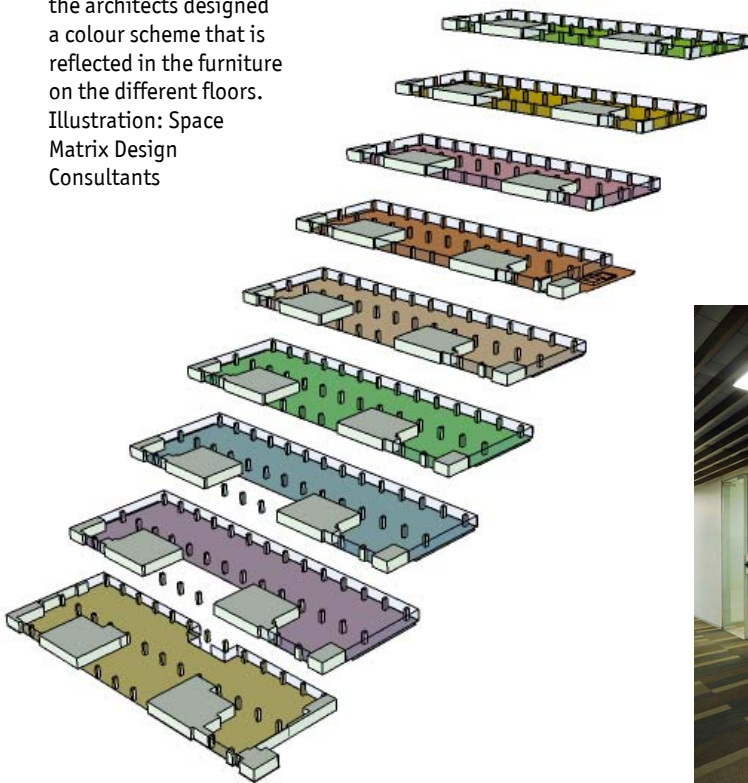

On each floor: areas for informal communication

The Sedus temptation workstation range combined with acoustic screens were used for furnishing the office areas. The screens enable privacy, are used as a magnetic writing wall or as a notice board. Storage-space furniture in special sizes provides additional storage space at each individual desk. Conference areas are furnished with netwin office swivel chairs.
